English courses introduction

Preamble

English is the most influential language in the world, and one of the most widespread, so, the current national strategy in terms of studies and training, is oriented towards the progressive learning of English by including it and/or in optimizing it in school and student programs. Thus, we hope that this first experience of hybrid teaching of legal English to Third year students will be productive and industrious.

Module summary

This module of legal English is composed of 7 courses/ conferences that deal with different themes of law. Intended in general, but also in variety, the first course is a general introduction to law. We then move on to the most well-known branches of law, including criminal law and labor law.. We will also focus on the topic of artificial intelligence, with its generalities and implications in law.

Topics:

1) Legal terminology (Most used terms)
2) The Law, general notions
3) Criminal law
4) AI, generalities
5) AI and law
6) Individual labor law
7) Collective labor law
8) Courses conclusions

Prerequisites

The students should have a minimum knowledge of the English language, particularly grammar and spelling. Being able to understand simplified language. An A1 level is sufficient to be able to follow the courses in this module.

Objectives

Allow students to know the legal lexicon in English. Train students in the use of legal language in English in their readings, research work, etc. Introduce students to teaching and assessment methods that are fun and informative at the same time.