

Active and passive voice

Active and passive sentences usually have the same meaning but the focus is different.

In the active voice the subject performs the action expressed and the focus is on the agent that does the action.

In the passive voice the subject receives the action expressed in the verb. The object of the active sentence becomes the subject of the passive sentence. We use a passive verb to say what happens to the subject. The focus of the sentence is on the subject that receives the action.

The passive verb is formed by the verb to be (are, were, have been, being...) + the past participle of the verb (for more information see the table in the chapter “Formation of the passive form”).

Active and passive voice

The person who makes the action is introduced by the preposition by in the passive sentence. But in some cases the subject of the passive sentence is omitted, this happens when who or what causes the action is unknown or unimportant. Look at the examples:

Active	Passive
 Mary bought a book.	 A book was bought by Mary.
A thief stole my car.	My car was stolen (by a thief).
I read the message.	The message is read (by me).
Someone has opened the window.	The window has been opened.
They are building a house.	A house is being built.
They are building three houses.	Three houses are being built.

Look at the position of the different parts of the sentence:

ACTIVE: Alan wrote a letter to me.

PASSIVE: A letter was written to me by Alan.

ACTIVE: My colleague has just told me the news.

PASSIVE: I have just been told the news by my colleague.

ACTIVE: Someone showed him how to use the mobile phone.

PASSIVE: He was shown how to use the mobile phone.

No one and nobody

ACTIVE: Nobody understands her.

PASSIVE: She is never understood.

She has never been understood.

Active and passive voice

ACTIVE: No one ever says a word.

PASSIVE: A word is never said.

Formation of the passive form

Active	Passive
present simple She does the homework.	am/are/is + past participle The homework is done (by her).
past simple He did the homework.	was/were + past participle The homework was done (by him).
present continuous She is doing the homework.	am/are/is + being + past participle The homework is being done (by her).
past continuous He was doing the homework.	was/were + being + past participle The homework was being done (by him).
present perfect She has done the homework.	have/has + been + past participle The homework has been done (by her).
past perfect He had done the homework.	had + been + past participle The homework had been done (by him).
future (will) She will do the homework.	will + been + past participle The homework will be done (by her).
future (going to) He is going to do the homework.	am/are/is going to + be + past participle The homework is going to be done (by him).
infinitive She wants to do the homework.	to be + past participle She wants the homework to be done (by her).
Modal He can do the homework.	modal + be + past participle The homework can be done (by him).
Gerund They are building the house.	being + past participle The house is being built .

